A refreshing portrait of the living folk tradition

When singer songwriter Mark Dvorak began his career in music he knew right away he'd be in it for the long haul. Thirty years later Mark is still writing, recording and on the road performing.

"At this stage of the game," said the singer from his home outside of Chicago, Illinois, "I feel like I'm doing my best work."

"Mark Dvorak doesn't play folk music, he IS folk music."

The Chicago Tribune called him "masterful," and the Fox Valley Folk Festival describes him as "a living archive of song and style." In 2012 WFMT Classical 98.7 fm Midnight Special host Rich Warren named him Chicago's "official troubadour."

Mark has given concerts in almost all of the United States and has made visits to Finland, Canada and Ireland. To date he has released twenty albums of traditional and original music including 2020s acclaimed Let Love Go On and 2022s Live & Alone.

Ready when you are

As COVID positivity rates fall and things begin to open up, Mark will be ready when you are to schedule a live or live stream performance. Find out how easy it is to bring Mark Dvorak to your performance series, venue, community organization or special event.

Mark tours coast to coast and welcomes all reasonable inquiries. His concerts are a mix of the familiar and the new, traditional folk and standards from the Great American Songbook. He plays authentic country blues guitar and picks great old-time banjo. Mark enjoys involving his audiences in sing along songs, just like The Weavers used to do, and mixes in his own infectious and well-crafted originals.

Though Mark often appears in theaters and on festival stages he is also at home in a more intimate setting such as a club, coffee house, house concert or community event.

He has a refreshing, down-to-earth presence and is a very engaging performer. He sings with a clear, signature voice and likes to joke around with the folks who attend his shows.
